IMPACT CHURCH (CENTREVILLE/NORTHERN VIRGINIA)

About the Family

Before moving from Mississippi to northern Virginia/D.C. in 2009, I served 10 years as a youth pastor and spent some time in law school. Once I fully surrendered to God's calling on my life, I left my family, friends and the familiar to reach students with the gospel. Within just a couple of years of living here, God made it clear that I was going to stay among these people and start churches for the advancement of the gospel.

In December 2011, I married my beautiful wife, Ellen, and we started Impact Church in September 2012. We just welcomed our first child, Ezekiel (Zeke), in July 2015. Ellen works as an administrative assistant for two non-profits in the D.C. area, Cutting EDGE Ministries and the Aurora Foundation.

We really enjoy taking advantage of all D.C. has to offer. We are huge baseball fans and history buffs and love checking out new coffee shops in the area.

About the Church Plant

Impact Church just celebrated our 3rd year and meets at Colin Powell Elementary. We wanted to plant a church that was ethnically diverse, and God has been faithful to answer that! More than 40 languages are spoken at this school, and on any given Sunday, 5-10 nations can be represented in our church. We are also located close to George Mason University, which is the largest university in Virginia with more than 30,000 students.

We believe if a Christ-centered revival breaks out in D.C., it will get the attention of the whole world. Our vision is to center everything around the gospel and to make disciples who will make disciples who will plant churches that will plant churches until everyone hears and Jesus returns.
